Asiana Airlines Information

Asiana Airlines is one of the two major airlines that serves South Korea and is an emerging leader in the airline industry throughout Asia. More and more travelers are coming to the region to do business as Asian economies are showing monumental growth. If the awards they've been given is an indicator, Asiana Airlines is doing an excellent job of meeting these new and growing demands.

Asiana Airlines belongs to a service called Star Alliance that makes it easier for people all over the world to travel. This is a network that gives travelers the opportunity to make flight reservations, get the best airline tickets, combine different types of frequent flyer programs and get good information about various cities that the airlines fly to. Star Alliance is very discriminating when it comes to the airlines that are in its program. Since 2003, Asiana Airlines has been a member of the Star Alliance. Overall, Star Alliance operates in over one thousand airports in about 181 countries, and this number is still increasing. This is a very good benefit for world travelers and anybody who wants to experience the best airline amenities when they travel.

Like all airlines, Asiana Airlines has several levels of service, Travelers, Business and First class. Other airlines offer economy class flight service but Asiana Airlines offers Travelers Class service instead. If customer reviews in many different travel publications are to be believed the food that is served on Asiana Airlines flights is really good. There are Western and Asian options available on the menu. Passengers in Travelers Class are also equipped with reclining seats that offer laptop ports and entertainment centers. There is also a consistent level of courtesy and attentiveness on the part of the flight attendants. By doing this, Asiana Airlines ensures that all travelers and not just those in more expensive seating classes are able to have a pleasant flight experience.

Business Traveler magazine awarded Asiana Airlines with three "Best in Business Travel" awards for Best Flight Attendants in the world, Best In-Flight Services in the World, and Best Overall Customer Service for 2010. The awards ceremony recognized many different airlines for excellence and was hosted at the Sofitel Hotel in Los Angeles on December 2010. In addition to providing important insights about airlines, Business Traveler also gives relevant information about hotels and other businesses that are related to the travel industry. These awards prove that Asiana Airlines is doing an impressive job serving an important part of its customer base, those who travel to Asia for business reasons.

Asiana Airlines is not only a leading airline in Asia but also around the world. The numerous awards it is winning only goes to show just how seriously it takes passenger comfort and customer service. Asiana Airlines has a bright future to look forward to as more and more business ties are being created between Asia and other countries.
