Discover Weekend Getaways and Mini Vacations for a Perfect Trip

You need to get away, but don't have the time or money to take a week or two off to head to your favorite destinations. Many people count out taking a weekend and heading to a semi-local vacation spot that allows them to get away, relax, enjoy time alone or together, and find romance, rest, fun, or whatever it is you are looking for in a vacation.

Mini vacations provide a simple solution to reviving yourself and they are great for smaller budgets, if you have children, and so forth. For a number of years we used to decide last minute to pack up and go somewhere for a mini vacation trip for a few days a couple times a year.

Below is a list of weekend getaways and mini vacations that you can partake in ASAP. Many of the ideas we mention are generalized to any area of the world, however we will mention various locations that are close to where we live as examples. Use your own knowledge, the web, and referrals to come up with travel destinations within a reasonable driving range from your location.

1. Excellent Romantic Spots: These are perfect for mini vacations. With anniversaries, holidays, romantic events, and so on always around the corner, we need to be on our toes to come up with fresh ideas to sweep our significant others off their feet and keep the romance going. Rent out a lake house or bed and breakfast, wisk away to romantic cities like Paris (or ones that surround you), travel to Vegas for some shows & gambling fun. Romantic spots are as creative as you make them.

2. Sporting Events: Take in a college football game and tailgating, travel to a nearby destination for a professional game, or other fun sport. An example is two of my best friends for Valentines Day are traveling a couple hours to our state capital to watch the state high school basketball championships. Each season there's are different sports that offer various opportunities to travel and enjoy. The options are quite vast as you can choose from horse racing, auto racing, baseball, football, soccer, and more. The list goes on and on.

3. Camping: This is a cheap vacation that can be fun, romantic, and adventurous. Combine camping with white water rafting or go hiking or without being too adventurous, rent a cabin in the woods and get away from society all together.

4. Theme Parks: If you want an adrenaline rush for a couple of days and love roller coasters or other rides, theme parks offer perfect weekend getaways. We live near Kings Island, Cedar Point, and other theme parks that are great attractions. There are theme parks everywhere and are a great way to have some fun while enjoying an array of activities. If you aren't close to Disney World or Disneyland, then think of a closer location.

5. World-Known Vacation Spots: Vegas is one, Amsterdam is another, you get the idea. Some of our favorites include places like Gatlinburg, TN, nearby lakes for boating events, New York for shows and shopping... too many to list. New York, San Diego, Phoenix, anywhere in a 6 hour driving time to your home can be perfect. Two of our favorites due to distance and love of the beach are Florida vacation spots or Hilton Head Island South Carolina. We prefer a week or two at these beach spots, but a weekend away can also provide just what was needed. Just write down a few places based on the above recommendations and pick one.

6. Beach Destinations: If you live close enough and are a beach bum, highly recommended. A great weekend getaway to enjoy the walks on the beach, dinner overlooking the ocean, beachfront hotel or villa, and all a beach vacation has to offer.

7. Specialty Events: These can include anything like festivals, concerts, etc. An example would be an event like Sturgis? What about a major event or festival? Pack the bags and head out for the weekend. Grab a hotel and head to this event. You'll have a great time. We have done this many times and always have a good time.

This is just a short list of ideas. Whether you plan in advance or decide last minute, just pack up the car and go. You'll come back feeling refreshed and ready to plan your next weekend getaway.
