Go See London, Go See France: Dont Delay Your European Vacation Another Moment!

My most memorable vacation that I ever went on was to London. Before I left, I spent a day adding additional American passport pages, packing my power converters, and exchanging currency. I had always wanted to go to London. Filled to the brim with culture and history, I became engulfed in this ancient yet novel city. Unlike some of the most populated cities we know today, London is refreshingly void of steel skyscrapers and smoggy factories. The week I spent there only knew sunshine and all I needed was to throw on a jacket. Everyday was something completely different than the one before, and as soon as I can get another opportunity, you can find me in London.

A lot of people dont travel because of all the preparation that it involves. When I was waiting to get a new USA passport, my mom and I were talking about all the things that I still needed to do. I wasnt worried. My mom said she dreaded traveling for that very reason. Dont let the preparation of traveling keep you from going on the vacation of your dreams. I didnt let it stop me, and now I have what seems like a lifetime of amazing memories.

If you love art, London is the place for you. Walking through London is like walking through a real life museum. The monuments, the huge buildings, and the atmosphere create such an immersing environment. Even the street art is beautiful. I spent a whole day walking around the Victoria and Albert Museum, or just the V and A Museum. Huge rooms packed with artifacts from every civilization were everywhere, and that was only one wing of the museum. Standing beside a huge, ancient artifact left me feeling so small and insignificant in the scheme of things, and it was such a cool learning experience. Huge halls filled with everything from fashion exhibits to fine art wove through the Museum, and I left feeling like I had walked though ten different museums.

I also got to explore the Tate Modern Museum. Before I had explored it, I was generally disillusioned by the modern art I had previously experienced. However, stepping into this huge hangar-like building, I was instantly amazed by the variety of art that I saw in front of me. I spent hours not only looking at but also interacting with all the modern art, some laced with such powerful messages that left me feeling inspired.

The best part of my trip was getting to go to Shakespeares Globe Theatre. William Shakespeare and all his works are the object of my undying love, and getting the opportunity to see plays at their birthplace was unbelievable. I chose to see the play as a groundling, and although my feet hurt a little by the end, getting to stand at the edge of the stage was amazing. I felt like I was in the play, and Ill admit, I got so wrapped up that I cried at the end of Othello.

Please dont let the preparation required for traveling stop you from experiencing your dream vacation. Whether you need a new passport or to add pass port pages, need to hire a dog-sitter, or just book a plane ticket, make some solid plans and get yourself there. You arent being called to go there for no reason, so dont ignore it. Pack your bags and grab your friends or family, and get ready to have an amazing vacation.
